I. C. C. TO HEAR 'T' CASE JUNE 14

Beaumont Aids Fight On Port Arthur

TESTS CANCELLATIONS

Abandoning of This As Call Port Issue in Case

What is declared to be the most important hearing ever to come up bearing on Port Arthur's future as a port is to be held at Washington June 14, when an examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission will hear the case brought against this port by the Transmarine Corporation, H. Y. Taylor, traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, announced today.

The case, according to Taylor, is one in which the Transmarine company seeks to eliminate Port Arthur as a port of call, cancel rates and make Beaumont the official call port. The Transmarine company has asked the elimination of Port Arthur, stating lack of rail facilities.

Beaumont, however, through the efforts of the local chamber of commerce, is fighting the case. The Interstate Commerce Commission will hear the case on June 14. The date for the hearing, June 14, was received Wednesday at Chamber headquarters.

Lack of rail facilities here formed the basis for an application for a certificate (Turn to Page 3, Column 5.)

'Exes' Here Resolve Stark Has Forfeited Seat As U. Regent

Adopt. Resolutions Asking Board to Resign in Row Arising From Offer of U. Presidency to Neff

Declaring the present board of regents of the University of Texas in offering the presidency of that institution to Governor Pat Neff has lost its ability to serve the best interests of the university, the Port Arthur alumni of the state university last night adopted resolutions asking the board to resign and "make it possible to organize a new board which will more fully enjoy the confidence of the ex-students."

Hints at Stark

The name of S. J. Luther Stark of Orange, chairman of the board of regents was not mentioned specifically in the resolution. By suggestion and the final section of the resolution Stark was obviously in mind when the resolution passed. The final section of the resolution expresses that "there is no connection between a position on the board of regents and in the University Memorial Stadium corporation. The present management of this corporation has successfully handled the stadium campaign, but the successful completion of the stadium can best be accomplished by retaining in office the present officers and directors of the said stadium corporation."

That the final clause of the resolution was a reference to Stark in particular was verified this morning by A. A. Gunter, president of the Texas Exes here.

Not Disqualified for Drive

"I believe we struck a happy medium," Gunter said, and the rest of the resolutions passed. "Unlike some other alumni associations, though, we do not think this action is in any way disqualifying for Stark in his capacity as a regent. The two have no relation," Gunter said.

Governor Neff as a governor and statesman was given the highest praise by the resolutions adopted. As a factor for the presidency of the University of Texas the Port Arthur alumni of the state university last night adopted resolutions asking the board to resign and "make it possible to organize a new board which will more fully enjoy the confidence of the ex-students."

WACO MAN IS REDMEN'S CHIEF

50 Palefaces Initiated in Final Session

A. F. Von Blon of Waco was elected Great Sachem of the Improved Order of Redmen in Texas and Galveston was chosen as the convention city for the 1925 meet last night in final elections preceding the closing of the 1924 convention, in session here since Tuesday.

The final business session of the convention was held Wednesday night at Weller's auditorium on Fifth street. About 50 "pale faces" were initiated as full fledged tribesmen, the German drill team of Beaumont putting on the work.

Two social events were enjoyed on the final night of the convention. The 50 officials and delegates attended a fishery and party at McFadden's beach. A number of visiting tribesmen not in an official capacity attended the dance at the Plaza given in their honor.

That the 27th annual convention just closed was one of the most successful ever held in Texas was the opinion of delegates last night. Praise for the manner in which local Redmen looked after the visitors and the hospitality extended by Port Arthur in general was expressed.

Following is the full roster of officers chosen at the meeting Wednesday:

Great Sachem, A. F. Von Blon of Waco; great senior sashamore, W. J. Johnson of Houston; great junior sashamore, Judge Wiley Bell of Dallas; great prophet, A. Ziegler of Galveston; great representative, D. O. Patton of Austin; great chief of records, R. E. Toppkins of Houston; great and great keepers of wampum, B. P. Wolf of Grapevine.

Latest News From Louisiana Towns

BATON ROUGE, La.—The salt water shrimp bill by Representative Feltier, of Jefferson parish, which had been favorably reported by the house committee on fish, game and oysters, today was recommended to the committee on Representative Feltier's motion. This followed the announcement last night by Representative Ellender, of Terrebonne parish that he had discovered a joker in the bill which would permit the shelling of salt water shrimp all the year round. The purpose of the bill was understood, he said, to permit packing of shrimp caught in the Gulf of Mexico all the year round, eliminating the present four months closed season on shrimp packing. Representative Morant, of Lafourche parish, in supporting the motion to recommend the bill to the committee, declared the bill as written would allow the larger canneries of shrimp to deplete the shrimp supply if permitted to fish shrimp all the year round in inland waters. Dr. Charles F. Gebike, of Gretna, and Robert Cooper, of Lafayette, both were in the legislature this week in the interest of the shrimp bill. Dr. Gebike declared the Louisiana packers should be allowed to can shrimp all the year round, as Mississippi packers are allowed to do, but that Cooper desired to protect shrimp in inland waters.

One of the most remarkable endorsements yet given to Karmak in Oklahoma is that of Mr. Charles Reed, beloved Tulsa citizen who resides at 113 1-2 S. Main St. Mr. Reed, who is celebrating his seventy-fifth birthday this month, says:

"I can truthfully say that I don't believe I would be alive today, much less enjoying such splendid health, but for Karmak. My friends who know what a terrible condition I was in are as amazed as I am at the results accomplished by the medicine. I had been suffering from digestive troubles and rheumatism for twenty years and between them I had become so feeble I could not walk but a few steps at a time without sitting down to rest."

"I spent a small fortune trying to get rid of the rheumatism alone, but nothing helped me, and you can imagine my gratitude to Karmak when I say that it has restored my health in every way. I will be glad to personally tell anyone about it who will call on me."

Several quarts of liquor were thrown overboard by Gross when he saw the officers approaching, they reported. He was ordered at the point of a gun to stop throwing the liquor and a search of the boat revealed the stored liquor, the police say. Federal charges were filed against Gross. He had not give around early this morning. The liquor was brought to the police station by the officers.

SULLIVAN FORECASTS A BEAUTIFUL DEADLOCK IN DEMO CONVENTION

Mark Sullivan, astute political prognosticator, predicts a beautiful deadlock in the national convention at Madison Square Garden with McAdoo and Smith the gladiators. This will be the first stage, according to Mark. It will be impossible to nominate either the Californian or the New Yorker. Then the second stage will be ushered in with the Smith delegates going for the most part to Underwood and the McAdoo delegates seeking a candidate in the dark horse stables, should they fail to win with Samuel A. Ralston of Indiana. Then Carter Glass and John W. Davis will fall heir to the divided delegations but in the end the Lord only knows and Mark is not in his confidence, who will be named to carry the standard of the democracy.

A VOICE FROM THE TOMB

Former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, overwhelmed two years ago by the voters of the state, has come to life again. He holds the republican administration responsible for all western business failures, for the low price of wheat, for the slump of land prices in the northwest and for the Lord knows what else. Wheat farmers of the northwest produced enormous surpluses every year since 1920. Russia and other European nations in their wheat production, came back. Argentina raised a huge crop every year. Canada raised sufficient wheat to supply the demands of Great Britain or rather the British Islands. American wheat prices slumped from $2.95 in war time to less than a dollar in peace time. This former Senator and democratic editor never heard of the law of supply and demand.

GAIN OF THIRTY BILLIONS

According to a bulletin issued by a big trust company the per capita wealth of France and Great Britain has shown little change as the result of the world war. There has been a gain of thirty billions in the wealth of America. Per capita wealth of the United States today is $2,090, against the per capita wealth of Great Britain amounting to $1,489 and of France $1,484 per capita. Twenty odd nations engaged in the world war. Their pre-war wealth was $63,000,000,000. Present wealth of these same nations is now estimated to be about $319,000,000,000, the loss in the aggregate having been attributed chiefly to the losses suffered by Germany. Wealth of France before the war was a shade under sixty billion dollars and is estimated to be practically the same today. Pre-war wealth of the United States was 200 billion dollars and the additional wealth of Great Britain and France and Germany. Patrick Henry started something when he said "Give me liberty or give me death."

LUCK IN ODD NUMBERS

Elsie Ferguson has acquired her third husband and this time it happens to be her stage villain. Elsie is thirty-eight, she admits it and she may be happy yet. Her first husband was the son of a very rich man. He was dismissed. Her second husband was a very rich art collector. They could not agree. Her third husband is an English actor, as poor as a church mouse. Elsie is an American. On the day following the wedding she instructed hubby to go to the court and take out his first papers declaring his intention of becoming an American citizen. Start 'em right and they go a long ways.

Senator Chas. L. McNary has been renominated by the republicans of Oregon. He ran as a republican, he denounced all blocs, he refused to appeal to religious or racial prejudices and he won hands down over a candidate who had the support of all the blocs. Are the voters of Oregon growing weary of the bloc government?

What is a bill of lading and what is it good for? Under the various statutes the bill of lading places the railroad in the position of insurer of the shipment. The railroad is liable in general, for loss or damage to which the goods are ordinarily subject. The exceptions from liability are stated specifically in the bill of lading and include, loss, damage, or exceptional delay due to an "act of God," the public enemy, quarantine, the authority of law, strikes, and riots, or fire 48 hours after notice of general loss has been given. Such occurrences as inherent defects in the freight, natural shrinkage, adulteration, bad packing, etc., also excuse the railroads from liability. In any case where the carrier is excused from liability it must not have been a contributing party to the loss, through carelessness or inefficiency. And California has able allies in the present House and Senate. The leaders of the Japanese nation are fortunately gentlemen and treat the whole matter with a contempt which the issue merits. But, unfortunately, neither the Japanese people nor the people of the United States are all gentlemen. There are only too many there as well as here who consider the question on one which must eventually be settled by force and arms. In this instance it is a good thing to imitate the leaders of the Japanese and to dismiss the whole question with the phrase, "Takigana"—I should worry.

Dr. Frank Crane's Editorial

TAKIGANA When the Japanese Exclusion Bill was reported to the Minister at Tokio he is alleged to have said: "Takigana." Which means, "I should worry." Most things do not amount to much and this matter of the Japanese exclusion is one of them. The Senate and House of Representatives has been at great pains to wound the sensibilities and hurt the feelings of a powerful and friendly people. A few weeks ago we asked for five million dollars to help them in their calamity when they had a bad earthquake. We have spoiled the effect of this good action, for we got eleven million through the Red Cross which has been sent them, because we were browbeaten by the race haters of California. We had a working agreement which was, in all respects, satisfactory. We close to violate that working agreement, and to break our pledge with a nation that has always kept its word, just to show that we are not bowed by foreigners. As a matter of fact any nation can

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE BY RUDY AYRES

BEGIN HERE TODAY The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton was declared, Nigel to Dolly, she leaves Dolly in the hands of the Bretherton family. Dolly and Nigel married an old sweetheart and mated with him for America. When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary, is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David insists that Mary tell her that David is searching for her. Mary is run over by a cab and is taken to a hospital. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY The nurse, a kind-faced, elderly woman, told him that Mary's injuries were more serious than they had at first supposed. "Her friends ought to be told," she said, a trifle curtly. "If you know where they are, it is your duty to tell them." Evans answered with some show of temper. He said he knew the names of the people who had been with her when she was living, or with whom. "And you are no relation yourself?" "None—I am only a friend." Her face softened a little at something pathetic in his voice and eyes. "Well, I'm sorry," she said more kindly. "Because I'm afraid she is in a very bad way." "You mean that she will die?" "Oh, I don't say that; but the doctor seemed very dissatisfied this morning. Perhaps you can call again during the day." Evans said he certainly would do so, and went to the office with dragging steps. He sat, neglecting his work, staring before him with worried eyes. The girl typist who worked next to him asked once or twice what was the matter. Evans roused himself with a start. "Nothing—nothing." But he could not keep his mind on his work. Once, when he was taking down letters for Fisher, his mind wandered, and he forgot to answer; Fisher spoke to him sharply. "Where in the world are your thoughts, Evans?" In a half-hour he raced back to the hospital. Mary's condition was unchanged. He dragged through the long day drearily, and evening saw him once more anxiously inquiring for her. This time the answer was more grave. "She is not so well." He stood, his face paling horribly. If she died, the Brethertons would never forgive him. If she lived: Well, if she lived, she could never be anything to him; he was but laying up trouble for himself whatever he did. He walked about the streets till it was quite late. He had no rest, but that he forgot. He was amazed to find that his steps had led him to the Fishers' house. He found himself standing outside, staring up at its lighted windows. He walked past, and came back again reluctantly. Should he go in or not? He shrank from doing so, and yet... He hesitated, with his eyes on the brass knocker, that gleamed in the light of a street lamp directly opposite. Suddenly he squared his shoulders resolutely, walked up the steps to the front door and opened the bell. CHAPTER XIII Found! David Bretherton was in the drawing-room with Dora Fisher when the bell went pealing through the house. He had spent a boring evening. Monty had had work to do, and was in his study; and David had been left to Dora's care. She had done her best to get up a flirtation with him. She had sung sentimental songs one after the other in the drawing-room, where artfully shaded lights threw up her beauty to wonderful advantage. David sat in a big chair in the shadow and listened. At least, she supposed he was listening; but, as a matter of fact, his thoughts were far enough away. Where was Mary? Day and night he thought of her, and wondered and worried. Now and then, when the plaintive voice and music at the piano came, he roused himself with an effort, and said, "Thank you—thank you very much," in an absent sort of voice. Dora was piqued; she rose from the piano stool with a little petulant movement. "I believe I bore you; I don't believe you like music." David protested quickly that he did, and set up a little from his lounging position, and tried to make conversation; but Dora was discouraged; she had expected a better reception from him; his evident effort to talk to her irritated her; she answered him shortly and snappily. In her heart she was beginning to despair of ever making a conquest of this man. It was her first failure, and she bitterly resented it. What was he made of, she asked herself angrily, that he stood so aloof from her? She did not realize that when a man cares deeply for one woman all the wiles and seductions of another will pass him harmlessly. Perhaps both were really thankful when a diversion was created by the evening post; a maid brought the letters and gave them to Dora. She sorted them through carelessly. "Only one for you, David. It has been sent on from the Red Ganga." She looked at it curiously as she spoke; she handed it over to him with evident reluctance. "May I open it now?" asked David. His voice sounded more awake. He broke open the seal without waiting for permission. Dora watched him covertly. She saw the quick little frown that creased his brow; the sudden start he gave. "Anything exciting?" she asked archly; but he did not seem to hear her. CHAPTER LIX Mary Is Dying He was reading the sprawling handwriting eagerly. "Dear Mr. Bretherton—I suppose, as I have never seen you, I must not call you 'David,' though we are brother and sister. Dora told me so much about you that I really feel as if I know you, although we have never met. Well, you will guess by this that I am Dolly—his wife! I am writing to you because I have nobody else in the world to help me, and I am in great trouble. "After Nigel died, I married again; I dare say you know that by now; Mary Fumal told me that she had been told to tell you she was kind to me, but she liked Nigel better than she ever did me. I have written to her several times since I left England, but she has only answered one of my letters. I suppose she was angry with me for marrying again; I am afraid you will be, too; but my husband begged me so hard—he was fond of me before ever I met your brother. I am telling you this frankly, in the hope that you will forgive and help me. "Robert is ill now—so ill that he cannot work; and the little money we had is nearly gone. Sometimes I feel that perhaps it is a sort of judgment on his for marrying again so soon. "I sent you a cable yesterday asking you to help me and shall wait anxiously for your reply. Please, please, for Nigel's sake, be kind to me, because, after all, I was his wife, and he did love me. "Your unhappy sister-in-law, "Dolly Durban." Bretherton read it through to the last line without comment. He hated the tone of the letter; the half conciliatory, half defiant attitude galled him. When he reached the end, he sprang to his feet. "If you will excuse me, I must see Monty at once." Dora gave a little startled laugh. "I hope it isn't any bad news, I—" It was just then that young Evans rang the front door-bell. The servant came into the room as David was leaving. "A young gentleman to see you, sir, please," she spoke to David. "He said it was most urgent. His name is Evans, please sir." "Evans?" David echoed the word at first blankly, then with increasing interest. "Evans, I will come and speak to him." He made a hurried apology to Dora, and went out, closing the door behind him. Young Evans stood in the hall. He looked nervous and ill at ease. When he saw David, he began an apology for disturbing him. "Not at all; come in Mr. Fisher's study; perhaps you will not mind his being present. He is away." Evans did not mind in the least. He was conscious of a great sense of relief now he had burned his boats. He wished he had done this before; he knew it would have been utterly impossible for him to have gone through another night such as he had just spent after leaving the hospital. David led the way into Fisher's room. "Sorry to disturb you, Monty. Evans has come up to see me—it's important, he says. May we come in?" Fisher swung round in his chair. "By all means, sit down, Evans." But Evans remained standing. He looked at David when he spoke. "I wanted to tell you that I know where Miss Fumal is, sir." Monty Fisher sprang to his feet excitedly. "You have known all along: I knew it!" "Evans' eyes flashed, but he answered quite respectfully. "I beg your pardon, sir: I know nothing about it all until last night. I met Miss Fumal quite by chance, and—" He paused, turning again to David: "I—I am sorry to say that she met with an accident, sir." "An accident? Where? When? Why didn't you tell me before?" His eyes were fierce, but Evans stood his ground manfully. "Because she was afraid of you, sir; because she made me promise not to even tell you that I had seen her; but now—when she is ill—perhaps you would like to know where she is." "I think," the word was half a groan. David took a quick step forward; he caught Evans' arm. (Continued in Our Next Issue)

Bullseyes

And May flowers bring June bills. A wise candidate is a man who stands for what the voters fall for. Anything can happen now. Insurance men held a convention in Chicago without talking off a single arm. Nobody on earth knows as much as a telephone girl in a small town. In Atlanta, Ga., a man sawed nine hours to get out of jail. Spring is too nice to stay indoors. Water furnishes 35 per cent of our electrical power while moonshine supplies us with about that much crime motive. In spite of the reported steady increase in the sale of silk stockings cotton stockings are not on their last legs yet. Oh, what is so raw as a fever blister in June? You must keep going around 66 day in the social circles.

LETTER FROM RICHARD SUMMERS TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

DEE, DEAR, DEAR BEE:

I laughed and yes, dear, I cried over your letter. At least I felt my eyes grow wet at times. You are such a sincere, straightforward woman. I thought I had missed you before I received that letter, but now I know I never realized how much I missed you—how much you are to me.

Yes, you called the turn; I did smile when I read the first sentence in your letter, and I did say to myself: "Bee is always so serious about everything."

I cursed myself when you told me that I had hurt you so much in that horrible letter I wrote you. But you are dear, I had gotten some queer ideas into my head—ideas which were very disturbing, which promised adventure and thrills galore; and I forgot for the moment that life is not a series of adventures and thrills, that in fact adventures and thrills are very few and far between for the average person, and that the woman who can make a commonplace life contentment is not only the rarest woman in all the world, but the only one with whom one can be in peace and quiet.

Bee, I will not contradict that I have been very much, as you say, infatuated with Paul Perier. But I know now that infatuation is not love. I think I was attracted to her because in all that colony of easy conquests, Hollywood, Paula had the reputation of being unobtainable.

Even you must know, Bee, that to a man the unobtainable woman is always the woman that sparks his pride and touches his vanity. He likes to think of himself as a conqueror, and when Paula Perier was kinder to me than perhaps any other of the men about her, I must say I was flattered.

However, my dear, no man may expect to marry an artist and be happy. Man is too egotistical. If the artist is married, he wants some one else to do the painting at a shrine which is erected before him. An artist must perform always think about herself, and the greater artist she is, the more self-contained she must be.

Please don't think, Bee, that I am saying anything derogatory to Paula Perier. I still think she is a very sweet woman. We are perhaps greater friends than ever before. But I have found out that even if she thought she cared for me, which she does not for a moment do, we could never be happy together. I am quite sure, Bee, that she would love you much better than she has ever loved me. You are just the kind of person whom she would love. You sincerely would appeal to her as it does to me.

Bee, I am not asking you to love me again as you did before. I am only asking you, dear, to let me love you—to let me try to bring back your faith and trust in me. I am coming east very soon for that special purpose; for now that I know where my happiness lies, I certainly am not going to let it get away from me.

Always devotedly yours, RICK.

Advice to the June Graduate Never a Time When Profession Needs More Gifted Men Than Now, Says Untermeyer

(NOTE—This is the second of a series of articles giving valuable hints to this year's graduates and written especially for The News by America's leaders in their respective professions.)

By HARRY UNTERMAYER, Leading Member of the American Bar.

I am of the opinion that the qualifications required for success in the practice of the profession of law are now of such a specialized and exacting character that if applied to business activities they would lead to a greater measure of material success. It requires a rare combination of ability and opportunity for exceptional success in our profession.

I would not advise a young man or woman to enter the profession without a thorough education, high industry and a keen analytical mind.

A young man or woman without social or business ties or influence that would secure him or her business is less likely to earn more than a bare living for the first five years after graduation.

A five years' clerkship in a busy office is a prerequisite to eventual success. By "eventual success" I mean moderate success. The financial returns that accompany that kind of success vary greatly in the different regions of the country. In New York City, the returns vary according to the particular branch of the law practiced by the person. As to the criminal law, there is very little opportunity for material success.

Replying to the inquiry as to whether I feel that the field of the law is too crowded: "I can only repeat the old adage that there is plenty of room at the top, in the law as in all other professions, but that the profession is greatly overcrowded at the mediocrity level."

So far as "concrete" opportunity, there never was a time when there were greater opportunities in my profession for gifted men of industry than at present. In the city of New York there is a terrible famine of well-grounded trial lawyers, especially for the trial of jury cases. The flower of the bar has been drawn away by the temptations of money-making from the high profession of advocacy into the low profession of brokerage and insurance, highly paid clerks or aid to financiers to keep the latter practically in the law.

To those who are familiar with the high character and splendid attainments of the dozen or more giants who practiced at the trial bar in the last generation, by comparison with the "pigmies" who now pass muster at the "heating trial lawyers" the situation is disheartening. Judged by the standards set by such men as William H. Evans, Joseph H. Choate, William Fullerton, Robert Seawell, Harold K. Porter and a whole of others that might be named, all of whom were contemporaries, there is not an outstanding trial lawyer in the New York bar today. Herein lies the great opportunity for the right man.

U. C. C. TO HEAR

Efforts of necessity and contrivance by Col. R. C. Duff, seeking to build an extension of the W. B. T. and S. railway from Livingston to Port Arthur. Hearing on the case was recently held at Austin, when the K. C. S. entered a protest and denied that any indemnity existed.

K. C. S. Rates Criticized

Despite this claim by the K. C. S. the Transmarine line announced its intention of abandoning Port Arthur as a port of call, claiming K. C. S. rates on joint hauls made it impossible to compete for business. The line then moved to Beaumont. Claims were made that on short haul business the K. C. S. demanded, in instances cited, more than half the freight for 20 miles haul on cars loaded at Houston, 80 miles away.

That Beaumont Chamber of Commerce is sending its traffic manager and the Orange chamber its general manager to the Washington hearing as intervenors for the Transmarine and, has been learned here. Whether the local chamber will be represented by a member of the office personnel has not been determined by the board of directors.

If Port Arthur is ruled against in favor of Beaumont, in the hearing coming up June 14, it will be dealt a heavy blow which will be hard to overcome. Every effort to secure a ruling against the Transmarine company should and will be made by the traffic department here," Taylor said today.

Attorneys for the Senator, who is charged with the crime of having been a member of the Ku Klux Klan, are expected to arrive in the city today.

The election of officers Tuesday night at a mass of three candidates was interrupted.

ARMY OPERATORS NAMED In Bergdoll Affair

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The war department today officially disclosed that the two Americans who attempted to abduct Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious draft dodger in Eberbach, Germany, in the summer of 1921 were operatives of the department of criminal investigation attached to the American army in Germany.

In requesting congress to appropriate $200 for payment of damages to a German girl shot during the kidnapping the war department admitted the attempt.

The girl, Lena Repp, was in an automobile with Bergdoll, it was explained when the two operatives, Sergeant Frank Zimmer and Charles Naeg attempted the coup. The shots struck the girl in the head. The German foreign office has agreed to accept $200 as indemnity, $91 war department said.

NURSERY PICNIC AT PARK FRIDAY

Troop 16 to Put on Demonstrations

Securing Port Neches park for all day Friday, the Port Arthur Day Nursery will hold a public picnic and Port Arthurians planning an outing are urged to attend the events in the park. K. H. Clements, Scoutmaster of Troop 16, which is putting on athletic events and demonstration, said today.

Plenty of cake, cold drinks, barbecue, field days morning and evening for the Boy Scouts and the "grown-ups" attending are among the features arranged. Scoutmaster Clements said, outlining the events planned as climbing a greased pole for a one dollar bill pinned on top; chasing a greased pig through a maze of trees, potato races, money and antelope races.

A baseball game will be played in the afternoon, and the 11th Engineer's band will give a concert from 1 until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, to be followed by a short address by Robert A. Shivers, Port Arthur attorney, according to plans made today. Prizes will be awarded the winners in the various races, tug-of-war and other games, the adults and boys competing.

The admission price will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Clements said. The Boy Scouts of Troop 16, who are to assist with the picnic, have been called to meet Friday morning at 7:30 o'clock at St. George's Episcopal church to start immediately for Port Neches. All of the stands for soft drinks and other concessions will be provided over by the Boy Scouts. Scoutmaster Clements said.

San Tone Airman Killed in Crash

By United Press.
SAN ANTONIO, May 29.—Death overtook a 1922 graduate at West Point at Kelly Field at 9:40 this afternoon when the plane, which flew alone, crashed into the brush near the base of Kelly Field. The pilot, a San Antonio man, was killed.

The plane apparently fell when within 100 feet of the ground.

Bessler's home was at Hivawee, Arkansas. He is survived by his mother at Hivawee.

PIMPLES CAUSE FOLKS TO SHRINK FROM ATTENTION

Whenever you go out, you can't help but pity the many folks who are trying to have a good time, but are so shrinking and backward about coming near others where pimply, blotchy and eczematous skin can be seen.

You almost feel like going up to them and telling them that they ought to begin using Black and White Ointment, and Soap, which so many thousands of happy people are depending on to keep their skin clear, smooth and good to look at.

Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than two million packages a year, and the fact that they are so economically priced is largely responsible for this record. The 30c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—Adv.

Lemons Bleach the Skin White

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents.

Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

"THREE MILES OUT"
Madge Kennedy returns to the local screen at the Strand theater in "Three Miles Out," a comedy drama that has an audience laughing heartily one moment, and tremendously thrilled the next. The irresistible star appears in a most exciting role, one that calls for tense acting and Miss Kennedy responds in a way that is most pleasing.
As the title implies, "Three Miles Out" is a story of romance and bootlegging, with the love story running so strongly that the violation of the Volstead law becomes a secondary proposition. High villainy stalks throughout, with Miss Kennedy right to the fore in the role of the heroine, a part that calls for the most strenuous work that she has yet done for the screen.

"At Holly Townsend," who is about to be married to a man, whose main forte is supplying the brains to a high-powered bootlegging system, and who falls into perils that make ideal picture climaxes, Miss Kennedy is superb; she goes through her part in a sweetly modest way, charmingly impersonable and giving a psychologic characterization that is well-nigh faultless.

"Three Miles Out" runs the gamut of thrills and laughter, there being some exciting times about the run-running ship at sea where Miss Kennedy does some work that classes her as the remote Harold Lloyd. She is supported in her cast by Harrison Ford as the manly young captain, John Locke, and Marc McDermott, who as a sleek villain makes himself more despicable as the story continues to weave danger about the pretty head and shoulders of the heroine.

Ivan Linow as "Bull" Jorgen, the unshaven, coarse-mannered, illiterate leader of the rum-running crew, adds zest to the plot by his exceptional work.

American Ring Ace Has Much to Win in Saturday's Battle

French Idol Will Lose to Gibbons

Hero of Shelby Too Clever for European Heavyweight and Should Win Over Georges Carpentier in Six Rounds

By BILL ARONER
The News Sport Editor

TOMMY GIBBONS, perhaps the greatest living exponent of ring generalship, will whip Georges Carpentier in short order. The fight may go the full limit of 10 rounds when the two pugilists get together in Michigan City Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. (Port Arthur time), but Carpentier will be a beaten man long before the sixth round comes up.

The French idol met his Waterloo July 2, 1921, at Jersey City; N. J. when the Hon. Jack Dempsey socked him to the land of

Golluf—

DICK'S SHOT
DEAR ALMER
TO ORANGE
LET'S GO, GANG!
SAM'S STANCE

Carp Raised a Howl!

Carp raised a furious howl, it is recalled, soon after the colored giant had drubbed him, and found the universe rank the cry of "fake" and "fake." But just as the village folk discovered in the mythical yarn of the shepherd's dog, when the shepherd howled "wool," "wool"—there was no "wool," and neither was there a "fake." Sili, a combination of European giant discovered after due deliberation, and won on the square, irrespective of Carpentier's charges.

Carp was simply suffering from the effects of a beating administered in Jersey City.

Gibbons met that fighter in Shelby, Mont., and holds the record of being the only living pugilist who ever won the full course in Jack Dempsey's "Ghost Killer" when that erstwhile gentleman of Flatland has annexed the world's heavyweight title. Contrary to Jack's ideas, Gibbons didn't fight a defensive battle; he was quite as aggressive as the champion, and while Dempsey now comes to the front with the statement printed several days ago throughout America that Gibbons "didn't open up," for fear of getting crowned, and that he failed to fight anything, but a defensive scrap this writer recalls vividly the opinion of 25 sport scribes, a good dozen of which are considered the country's leading sports critics, who differed considerably when Gibbons, champion, and who at the time of the Shelby fight, gave it all to Tommy.

Dempsey landed on Carpentier's jaw at will; he didn't land on Gibbons' jaw often because he couldn't find it often, and we recall how those writers who sat at the ringside in Shelby recounted that "Gibbons was making the champion miss (the blows he directed) it, quietly."

Carpenter may be more than the shell he was when he faced Bat Siki; he may be even stronger, but he can't be in any better condition than when he battled the champion, for he has not trained so long. He went four rounds with Dempsey; Gibbons went 15.

Carpenter has a habit of taking an early horizontal position on the resined floor; Gibbons has yet to be knocked off his feet.

It is hardly plausible to conceive that Carp would get a decision over Tommy if they went the limit, and this writer doesn't believe they'll go that far.

Georges isn't considered by eastern promoters as good for two mills; Tom Gibbons has already been considered for his go with Carpentier, and later for one with Dempsey.

We don't believe Tom Gibbons will knock Jack Dempsey out, but we do believe that with an unbiased referee, and the fight staged in the ring, against the Gotham Madison Square Garden where points could decide a victor that should Gibbons and Dempsey ever meet again, and go the full limit of their fight, the world would have a new heavyweight champion.

ALL IS READY FOR BIG RACE

Weather Man Only Fellow Not Prepared

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28.—Everybody except the weatherman was ready today for the start of the 500-mile international auto race at the Indianapolis speedway tomorrow.

Before made their last trial runs and placed the machines in the garages for final adjustments.

Race fans began arriving by hundreds in a downpour of rain that showed no signs of letting up.

The most encouraging word the weather bureau held out was "probably unsettled Friday."

Two more cars were qualified yesterday, bringing the number of certain starters up to 22.

L. L. Corum qualified the last of the DuPonts at 53.7 miles an hour, while Fred Hendon put the third Harley-Warlock through an 82.7 miles per hour pace.

EXPORTERS TAKE 9 TO 7 BALL GAME

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 28.—Ja-cobus was in form yesterday and Beaumont took another game from the Shreveport 9 and 7.
